Encouraging Active Travel for short trips to improve health and the local economy

ActiveAccess

Active Access is about increasing cycling but especially walking for short everyday trips – to work, to school, to the shops and for recreation – to benefit people's health, but also the health of local economies. Innovative projects working with shops, restaurants, schools and workplaces in 12 cities and regions across Europe are raising the profile of walking and cycling with politicians, technicians and local people in each area – to find out how, and for lots of other resources, log on to...
